

Professor of the Practice Positions in Social Work

Location: New Orleans, LA

Description

The Tulane University School of Social Work (TSSW) (<http://tssw.tulane.edu>) is seeking several exceptional Professors of Practice for our on-ground MSW, online MSW, and DSW programs starting in spring 2019. Professors of Practice positions are full-time non-tenure-track 12-month appointments with primary duties of teaching and student advising.

Tulane University, a Carnegie designated Research I institution, is located in the vibrant city of New Orleans. The School of Social Work invites nominations and applications, especially in the areas of Clinical Behavioral Health, Health, Community organizing, Community practice, and Research. Backgrounds (at all levels: macro, mezzo, and micro) in mental health, health disparities, addictive behaviors, community-based clinical practice, participatory research methods, and prevention/intervention expertise are preferred. Previous experience in teaching online and hybrid innovative courses are also of particular interest to us.

Professors of Practice will teach in the School’s on-ground MSW, online MSW and DSW curriculum. Teaching duties will vary from 1 to 3 courses per semester based on the needs of the School (total load 9 courses per 12 months) as well as student advising and success support.

Courses will vary across micro, mezzo, and macro practice areas to include:

Social work policy	Direct practice	Human Behavior	Practice with individuals, families, and groups
Diversity and social justice	Organization and community practice	Community organizing	Field
Theory	Advanced practice	Research	Various electives

Qualifications

Applicants must possess an MSW or Masters degree in a related behavioral science discipline. MSW applicants must have a valid social work license.

Preferred: A PhD, DSW, or a doctoral degree in a related behavioral science discipline. Three or more years of teaching experience in on-ground and/or online teaching at the graduate level.

Application Instructions

Interested persons should submit a letter of application outlining teaching experience, a curriculum vita, teaching evaluation for the two most recent courses taught, and the names of two references (can simply be appended to the cover letter).
